THE GRANT INSTITUTE: GRANTS 101: PROFESSIONAL GRANT PROPOSAL WRITING WORKSHOP

May 8 - 10, 2006 8:00 AM - 5:00 PM

University of Central Florida Orlando, Florida

Live Oak Event Center, Room Live Oak A

URL: www.thegrantinstitute.com

The Grant Institute's Grants 101 Course is an intensive and detailed introduction to the process, structure, and skill of professional proposal writing. This course is characterized by its ability to act as a thorough overview, introduction, and refresher at the same time. In this course, participants will learn the entire proposal writing process and complete the course with a solid understanding of not only the ideal proposal structure, but a holistic understanding of the essential factors, which determine whether or not a program gets funded. Through the completion of interactive exercises and activities, participants will complement expert lectures by putting proven techniques into practice. This course is designed for both the beginner looking for a thorough introduction and the intermediate looking for a refresher course that will strengthen their grant acquisition skills. This class, simply put, is designed to get results by creating professional grant proposal writers.

CIVIC RESPONSIBILITY IN SCIENCE, TECHNOLOGY, ENGINEERING AND MATHEMATICS EDUCATION

May 22-24, 2006

A Three Day Institute in Portland, Maine

Sponsored by the Campus Compacts in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont and Learn and Serve America

Please join us in beautiful Portland, Maine for three days of intense reading, discussion, practice, and planning. Sessions will take place at the new Gulf of Maine Research Institute, the University of Southern Maine, and at Rippleffect's Cow Island in Casco Bay. Registration has been extended to April 21, 2006. For a complete brochure, go to:

<http://www.mainecompact.org> and click on the link to the Institute's brochure on the front page.

This three-day Institute will provide an opportunity for science, technology, engineering and mathematics faculty to explore the complex ways their disciplines and citizenship bear upon each other. What do citizens need in order to understand and evaluate scientific and quantitative arguments? What is the responsibility of scientists, engineers and mathematicians for the potential and actual applications of the knowledge they create? And what is our responsibility as educators to raise these issues in our classes?

In recent years, service-learning and other community based approaches have significantly changed the way many faculty members conceive their work. Breaking down old barriers between "town and gown" have compelled faculty in many different disciplines to think about what they do (research, teaching, and service) in relation to the public, society, and democracy.

During the Institute, participants will be provided with relevant texts, models, and practices which they will analyze and discuss together. These experiences will culminate in a community-based collaboration and will prepare faculty to develop their own strategies for connecting theory to practice and the classroom to the larger community.

COMMUNITY-CAMPUS PARTNERSHIPS FOR HEALTH'S 9TH CONFERENCE

May 31 - June 3, 2006
Minneapolis, Minnesota

Walking the Talk: Achieving the Promise of Authentic Partnerships

Partnerships between communities and higher educational institutions as a strategy for change are gaining recognition and momentum. Service-learning, community-based participatory research and broad-based coalitions are among the methods these partnerships pursue to accomplish their goals. In the last decade alone, funding agencies have invested over a billion dollars in such partnerships, including more than a dozen multi-site initiatives that employ community-campus partnerships as a change strategy. Increasingly, partnerships are being recommended by national bodies and pursued by funding agencies for achieving a wide range of significant outcomes.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON VOLUNTEERING AND SERVICE

June 18 - 20, 2006

Seattle, Washington

www.volunteeringandservice.org

Volunteers climb mountains and lift lives. On the societal level, there are mountains of poverty, despair, homelessness, and illiteracy to overcome. On a movement level, volunteers seek higher ground of excellence in funding, management, and collaboration. And on a personal level, volunteers strive to be more helpful and relevant through their service. While volunteers have made tremendous progress, there is much more to do. The conference will both raise our sights to the climb ahead and give us the route to get there. Join us in Seattle June 18-20, 2006 for an uplifting experience.

THE CHALLENGE OF ENGAGEMENT: THE THIRD ANNUAL UNIVERSITY-COMMUNITY PARTNERSHIP CONFERENCE

July 12 - 14, 2006

Inn at Virginia Tech and Skelton Conference Center Blacksburg, Virginia

The purpose of this conference is to explore the challenge of engagement, especially as it links to the leadership and institutional missions of higher education. What tools are needed to foster authentic engagement that leads to transformation---both within higher education and in the communities where these institutions are located? How do university-community partnerships facilitate this transformation? What are examples of engagement that "works"?

9TH SUMMER SERVICE-LEARNING INSTITUTE IN THE HEALTH PROFESSIONS

July 21 - 24, 2006

In the Cascade Mountains of Washington State

The institute has tracks for both novice and experienced service-learning practitioners. Applications, due April 7, 2006, are available at <http://depts.washington.edu/ccph/servicelearning.html>. Apply early! To facilitate meaningful learning, the institute is limited to 22 participants. The institute curriculum combines experiential and didactic approaches to teaching and learning. A unique and effective aspect of the institute's approach is inclusion of a mentoring model in which participants work in small groups and as individuals with mentors to further shape their own action plans for developing and sustaining service-learning courses and programs.

THE ANNUAL OUTREACH SCHOLARSHIP 2006 CONFERENCE

October 8 - 10, 2006
Ohio State

The Annual Outreach Scholarship 2006 Conference focus on "Engagement through the Disciplines," addressing the unique approaches to community-academic scholarly outreach through the discipline lens. In addition to the Outreach Scholarship conference, Columbus is hosting the national Imagining America: Artists and Scholars in Public Life "Engagement Through Place" conference October 7 and 8th. On October 8th, the Imagining America and Outreach Scholarship conferences will be held jointly. So, by coming to Columbus in October 2006 you can attend two conferences that look at the depth of university-community partnerships and the scholarship which grows from these partnerships. For more information, please visit: <http://newmedia.osu.edu/outreachscholarship/>
