'PJC Today' Show Program Highlights Nursing and Healthcare

November 30, 2005

PENSACOLA, Fla. -- Tune in 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 16, for "PJC Today" on WSRE, PBS for the Gulf Coast. Patrice Whitten, executive director of Pensacola Junior College Foundation, and Tom Delaino, president of PJC, co-host the program that focuses on nursing and healthcare.

Topics include the status of nursing and healthcare in the greater Pensacola area and community needs; professional needs and changes in the nursing profession; how hospitals serve the needs of the community; PJC partnerships and how the college's $1.3 million federal grant can benefit health-care programs and the community.

Guests are Al Stubblefield, Baptist Healthcare chief executive officer/president; Dennis Taylor, West Florida Hospital chief executive officer; Pete Gandy, Santa Rosa Medical Center chief executive officer/president; and Bill McLaughlin, Sacred Heart Hospital president/Pensacola.

A student segment features the recent PJC Warrington campus health fair for high school students.

Watch the program over the air on Channel 23, on cable Channel 8 in Escambia and Santa Rosa counties and on cable Channel 9 in Okaloosa County.
